ATTEMPT TO DESTROY BOXES
WHICH CONTAIN RESULTS OF ELECTION

ATTEMPT REPULSED

Scattering Returns Give Majority. Socialists Lead in Early Count.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

London, Jan. 20.—Rioting occurred in Berlin during last night after the Spartacans had attempted to destroy the ballot boxes used in Sunday's election, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen. The Spartacans were repulsed everywhere. Fighting took place in the streets and at the Hallsche. The Spartacans also made an attempt to storm the office of the Vortwarts.

Socialists Lead.

Berlin, Sunday, Jan. 19.—Twenty-four of the 321 election districts in Greater Berlin gave the following totals: German democratic party 7,475, and socialist 3,155; independent socialists 2,005; German national party 4,765; German people's party 2,290, Christian (peasants) party 2,254. The strength shown by the democratic party is surprising. In view of the fact that Berlin always has been overwhelmingly socialist.

Coblenz, Sunday, Jan. 19.—The extreme radicals are believed to have found little support today among the German voters in the American zone of occupation. Early reports tonight indicated that the delegates elected to the national assembly were from the more conservative groups.

The American troops were on the alert throughout the area of occupation prepared to suppress any disorder but none was reported either in Coblenz or in the smaller towns. The election was conducted quietly, the only unusual feature being the participation of the women.

Both the centrist and German democratic parties had 12 candidates. The centrist candidate was Maria Schmidt, who is well known in church circles, while German democratic had nominated Dr. Anna Fischer.

Amsterdam, Jan. 20.—Somewhat of a sensation was caused in Berlin Sunday, according to the Nuns from the Linderstrasse in Lindenstrasse marched to this polling booths in a group.

Predicts Victory.
Berlin, Jan. 20.—Richard Fischer, secretary of the majority socialist party in Berlin early this morning estimated that in the election the socialist would have between 45 and 50 per cent of the votes, the independent socialists five, the centrist thirty and the German democratic from fifteen to twenty per cent.

Dinslaken, Renish, Prussia, Sunday, Jan. 19.—Demonstrations from the Lohberg coal mine strikers here caused the closing of the polling booths and the registers of electors.

Cattle Buyers Seek Pure Bred Stock in State, Says Field Man

Madison, Wis., Jan. 20.—Wisconsin farmers must cater to the demands of cattle buyers from other states for better stock, says a field man. There is no better stock for the scrub offspring. The hybrid is not wanted.

This, in substance, summarizes the present cattle situation in Wisconsin, with regard to supplying other states, according to D. S. Bullock, fieldman of the Wisconsin Live Stock Breeders' association and association and Wisconsin Department of Agriculture. "The influence of buyers for pure bred and high grade cattle spells the doom of the scrub sire," declared Mr. Bullock here today.

One state has been quick to recognize the trend of the time and to realize the significance of improving his herd. Every owner of a herd in this state must realize—and the sooner he does the quicker will his own business expand.

Letters from more than a dozen states have been received by Mr. Bullock during the past few weeks from prospective buyers inquiring as to well bred stock. All letters emphasize the fact that scrub animals were taboo.

One state recently launched a campaign to oust the scrub bull from Budger herds for the general welfare of the state and the specific improvement of the breeding conditions. Mr. Bullock is an official of the state campaign.

ASSEMBLY BILL WOULD KEEP CANDIDATES IN THEIR OWN PARTIES

MEASURE WOULD RAISE NUMBER OF NAMES ON BALLOT FROM 10 TO 25 PER CENT.

SUFFRAGE UP AGAIN

Assemblyman Nolan Would Have Referendum Vote At General Election in November, 1920.

By Fred L. Holmes
Madison, Jan. 20.—A bill aimed at keeping the members of each political party within its own primaries has been offered in the house by Assemblyman Thomas Bartingale. Under the present law if the candidates in any party for an office fail to poll ten per cent of the vote of the party for governor at the last election, the names cannot be placed on the ballot under party designation. The Bartingale bill seeks to raise the percentage to 25 per cent. The measure is aimed at securing to the political parties of the state to turn out a larger primary vote, when the candidates for office on each ticket are nominated.

In the last general election in Wisconsin, the democratic party fell to third place, primarily because its candidates at the primary had failed to poll 10 per cent. So much was the primary vote of the democrats did not stay in their own primary. To force a larger attendance at the primaries and to impress party managers with the necessity of polling a large vote, Assemblyman Bartingale has offered his bill. By the terms of his bill when a candidate for any office receives less than 25 per cent of the vote he must run as an independent and not as a regular party candidate.

Assemblyman Nolan, Janesville, would have the people of the state pass on the equal suffrage proposition at the general election in November, 1923. He has offered a bill to that effect in the lower house. In the upper house, Senator Roy C. Wilcox has offered a referendum bill on the same subject, but asks for a vote of the people at the April election in 1919. Both measures will be given an immediate hearing.

Another telegram from Budapest says that Count Karolyi, the president of the Hungarian republic, has entrusted M. Berinkey with the formation of a ministry and that the following cabinet has been named:

Minister of justice, M. Berinkey; Minister of the interior, M. Nagy; Minister of finance, M. Szende; Minister of agriculture, M. Bozsa; Minister of provisioning, M. Balogh; Minister of social assistance, M. Poldi.

According to the Tagblatt the cabinet has not decided on the place the assembly will meet, notwithstanding recent statements attributed to the government leaders.

French Senate Honors Wilson at Luncheon; Eulogizes U. S. Executive

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Paris, Jan. 20.—President Wilson was the guest of the French senate at luncheon today. He was greeted by Antonin Dubost, the president who made an eulogistic address in which he said that the senate welcomed the president and his ideas.

President Wilson: My colleagues and myself thank you for accepting our invitation. From your first steps on the land of France and since your entry into Paris the French people have spontaneously given their hearts to you and they perceived at once in your frank smile and in your so loyal and open physiognomy, that you too were spontaneously giving yourself to them.

We welcome here, Mr. President, you and your ideas. Nowhere could your splendid ambition to substitute for the periodically broken equilibrium of material forces the definite moral forces elicit more enthusiasm than in France and nowhere more than in the senate, since the state of international peace has been a first of all, and for a long time pre-

GERMANY TO REMAIN INTACT; CONSTITUTION DETAILS OUTLINED

London, Jan. 20.—Details of the proposed new constitution for Germany drawn up recently at a conference of widely known authorities on constitutional law, including the German ambassador in London, are being made public. The problem of housing is one that I am relying upon you to solve, he said. "As soon as you solve that problem, I can confidently state that Janesville will be the home of an industry which will manufacture farm tractors and assemble them complete, not only that. The location of this city is such that once the industry is well started, it is charged that where the Bolsheviki are especially bitter against the Poles, it being reported that the declaration of a 'Holy war' against Poland by the bolshevik government makes it 'right and the duty of every Bolsheviki to kill the Poles as enemies of mankind.'"

There are fewer burning houses than formerly but it is charged that where Bolsheviki are spared their inmates are slain. "We have saved the nest but destroyed the birds," is a remark attributed to one Bolsheviki leader.

ENDORSE PLAN FOR LARGER REST ROOMS AT COMMERCE MEETING

MEMBERS' COUNCIL UNANIMOUSLY FAVORS ENLARGING JANESVILLE CENTER.

ACTION IS CERTAIN

Rest Rooms Will Be Open Sunday Afternoon From Two to Five O'clock. Would Double Capacity.

Endorsement of a move to provide larger and more substantial quarters for women's rest rooms was made by the Janesville Chamber of Commerce in meeting this noon at the Myers hotel. The endorsement means that action will be taken immediately to secure quarters in order that more of the women and working girls of the city and country can be provided for. A more substantial building will be secured in the near future.

Rev. Henry Williams, at the meeting before the members' council of the chamber. After a short discussion the endorsement was made unanimously.

Mr. Abbie Helms, secretary of the City Federation of Women, explained what the rest room has already meant to the women of the city, and showed the immediate need for more spacious quarters.

"The community center of the federation has been a community center for the housewives of Janesville," she said. "In the second place, the room provides a homelike atmosphere for the working girls—those who are employed here."

"At present the rooms are accommodating about 1,500 women a month, at an expenditure of about $1,500 per year. There is a need for accommodating at least twice this number."

The rest rooms, which are open daily except Sunday, will open Sunday afternoon from two to five o'clock, beginning next month.

LEAGUE PLAN OPPOSED BY NEUTRALS

DECISION THAT ORGANIZATION WILL BE CARRIED ON BY BELLIGERENTS CAUSES
DISSATISFACTION.

PROTEST NOT VOICED

Claim Institution Is International and Independent of War And No Distinction Should Be Made.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Paris, Jan. 20.—The decision that the league of nations will be organized by the belligerents alone is said to be cause of some dissatisfaction among the neutrals who are already informally discussing the matter among themselves.

Whether any formal action will be taken by the neutrals to voice their protest is not yet known but among some of them there is said to be a feeling that it would be neither fair nor dignified that they be afterwards asked to subscribe a covenant in whose making they had no part.

The neutrals, it is understood do not claim participation in the discussion of peace terms because they took no part in the war, but they contend that a league of nations is an international institution independent of the war and that there fore no distinctions should be made among belligerents and non-belligerents. It is also pointed out that, among the neutrals there were several countries whose anti-German feelings were as strong as among the allies, but that owing to geographical positions and other factors, they were forced to remain neutral.

The situation in Russian was taken up by the supreme council of the peace conference at its session today. Joseph Noulens, the French ambassador to Russia, was present at the meeting and addressed it on the Russian question.

This announcement was made in the official statement given out regarding the proceedings of the plenipotentiaries.

The next meeting of the council will be held tomorrow at 10:30 o'clock. A declaration of independence by the business of comparing various plans for the formation of a league of nations and harmonizing them into a unity of ideas which can be taken up for adoption.

"The program, it is believed, will present the common thought of the leaders of the United States, Great Britain, France, and Germany, and will furnish a starting point from which all the peace delegates may participate in the work. President Wilson is personally expressing his confidence in the program and the peace conference to the virtual exclusion of all others.

With a definite plan formed for erecting a structure about which all nations close to the peace conference are working, there are about 25 working days remaining of the time, but President Wilson has allotted to himself for work in France before leaving for home.

It is whether he can in this comparatively short time bring the nations together in an agreement for society of nations. Many of the present peace delegates are reasonably convinced he can do so.

With discussions now past the point where it seems to be agreed there shall be a common police force and that the question of whether a nation shall contribute force in carrying out the decisions of the league will be left to each nation to decide in each instance.

The general plan being most talked about, embodies an enlargement of the principles contained in the treaties negotiated by William J. Bryan.

These provide for a delay of a year before declaring war, and investigation by a special commission of all disputes, and that no nation shall go to war without giving notice without giving special notice. Such a plan, current discussion in Paris brings out, is intended by those who favor it to be a step toward the establishment of a permanent peace conference.

It is proper to state at this juncture that President Wilson himself has a reasonably complete plan for the formation of the league of nations. It may be said that the plan presented by General Smuts and is working in close harmony with M. Bourgeois and Lord Robert Cecil.

New Telephone Toll Rates

Effective January 21, 1919

In accordance with the order of the Postmaster General, dated December 13, 1918, new schedules of rates for telephone toll calls under which all toll calls throughout the United States are placed on a uniform basis, become effective 12:01 a. m., January 21, 1919.

Under these new schedules the "station to station" rate is the base rate upon which all rates for the various classes of service offered, are computed. This rate is determined by the air line distance between toll points and is computed, for the initial period, on the basis of 5c. for each 6 miles up to 24 miles and 5c. for each 8 miles beyond that distance.

For toll calls where the calling party does not specify a particular person to be reached at the called telephone, the "station to station" rate is charged. This method provides the cheapest and quickest form of telephone toll service.

"Station to station" calls must be made as far as possible by giving the telephone number of the called telephone. Where the number is not known and telephone directory information is not available, the number should be obtained from "Long Distance" or if the called telephone is at a distant point, the name and address of the called subscriber should be given to the toll operator.

For toll calls where the calling party specifies a particular person to be reached at the called telephone and the connection is established and conversation held with that person, the "person to person" rate is charged. As this service requires a greater amount of operating effort, the rate for such calls is about one-fourth greater than the "station to station" rate. (Minimum "person to person" rate 20c.)

For toll calls on a "person to person" basis, where the calling party, in placing the call, designates a definite time at which he will talk and the conversation is held, the "appointment" rate is charged. As this service involves the making of the appointment in addition to the operating effort necessary for a "person to person" call, the "appointment" rate is about one-half greater than the "station to station" rate. (Minimum "appointment" rate 25c.)

For toll calls made on a "person to person" basis where messenger service is required to secure attendance of the designated person at the called telephone, the "messenger call" rate applies. This rate is the same as the "appointment" rate, plus any necessary charge for messenger service.

In connection with all toll calls other than those made on a "station to station" basis where the connection is established but the conversation is not held, because of any reason beyond the control of the telephone company a "report charge" is made equivalent to about one-fourth of the "station to station" rate. (Minimum "report charge" 10c., maximum $2.00.)

Reduced rates, applying only to calls made on a "station to station" basis are quoted for toll service between the hours of 8:30 p. m. and 4:30 a. m. The rate between 8:30 p. m. and 12 midnight ("evening rate") is about one-half the "station to station" day rate, and between 12 midnight and 4:30 a. m. ("night rate") about one-fourth the "station to station" day rate. The minimum night rate is 25c. Where the "station to station" day rate is 25c. or less no reduction is made for night service.

The time at which connection is established at originating point governs the rate determining whether the day, evening or night charge applies on "station to station" service.

Day rates apply on all calls other than those made on a "station to station" basis, whether they are made during the day, evening, or night.

THROTTLE IT NOW!

Washington officials have been narrowed by the sudden outbreak of propaganda of all kinds which has been flooding the country since the armistice was signed. It has become a menace and the department of justice and the postoffice department are watching it carefully.

We must shut the government in
stampings out in the United States.
We have not ended. It is true that an armistice has been signed, but until
final peace has been declared, at least,
we should not allow any activity on the part of those who would covertly
distribute propaganda and incite unrest. The propaganda which has become a menace is not only pro-Germanism, but socialism and Bolshevism. It should be throttled wherever it is found. Every American man and woman who is approached
by the peddlers of these false and destroying doctrines should be on the alert to aid in its destruction.

Just how much spread of propaganda is due to German money is not known, but government officials are said to be reasonably sure that a great deal comes from that source. It is their opinion that the men who pulled the strings back of the scenes during the Kaiser's regime are still in power
in Berlin.

The men who are working to combat this menace express the belief that foreign language editors have taken advantage of the let-down of the United States in guarding against such propaganda since the armistice
was signed and are pushing publicity
which will put interests of Germany
or other races here above the interests of the nation, and set back the growth of Americanism.

Brotherly love is a new sentimenta-
lism which German language newspapers are preaching.
Remember the "brotherly love"
which was practiced when the Huns
laid off our boys after they had yelled
"Kamerad"; remember the "brotherly love" which was displayed when they turned men out of German prisons so weak from starvation and misadventure that they died along the roadside as they attempted to crawl
back to their comrades in the army?
Then deal with the disseminators of this malicious propaganda as your conscience dictates.

TAKE CARE OF OUR SOLDIERS

A storm of protest swept over the senate last week when an attempt was made to rush the $100,000,000
food relief administration bill through.
Both republicans and democrats made determined opposition to the proceedings.

Senator Meyers, democrat, rightly
proclaimed that the proposal "savored of highway robbery of the American treasury by European Bolsheviki,
who are threatening to set the world
afire unless American dollars are shoveled out to feed them."

It is not within the privilege of congress to allow American money to be used or spent without knowing who will be responsible for its repayment.
Neither should the senate stand for any such threatening attitude on the part of the Reds, who have run affairs in Russia with a high hand and placed the country into a predicament from which it cannot release itself.

Senator Kenyon in speaking on the measure declared: "There are more than 100,000 men out of work in the United States, many of them soldiers.
You can go to a hospital almost within
the capitol's shadow and find wounded American soldiers who have not received a cent of pay for seven or eight months. In the government hospital for the insane you will find American soldiers suffering from shell-shock who have no money with which to pay for their care, because we didn't have the money, or at least didn't provide any other place for them. Some of this money should go to pay allow-ments to the mothers and the wives of the soldiers, many of whom have not received their allotments for months.
Let's stop Bolshevism abroad if we can, but let's first get at some of the causes of unrest in our own country."
Congress should heed the pathetic
cry of mothers and wives who have sacrificed their sons and husbands
before it responds to the snarl of the wolves who are holding the bloody knives of anarchy at the throats of those whom they threaten.

THE PEACE CONFERENCE.

The peace conference which has been awaited with more or less anxiety by the public on this side of the Atlantic, got away to a fair start Saturday. The first task of the delegates was to take up the matter of fixing the guilty for starting the war
and for the crimes committed during the war. That will not take long to settle, for the delegates have decided
the question in their own minds long ago.

The plan to form a league of nations will next be brought before the conference and this perhaps will occupy the august body for some time.

It is going to be impossible to keep the lid on the conference according to the program mapped out last week at
a preliminary meeting of the extreme council. The public has taken too seriously the promises of open diplomacy for the gag rule on the press to apply at this late date. President Wilson and Premier Lloyd George have been subjected to tremendous pressure by the public opinion and representatives of the press.

The rule which provides for the publication only of "accepted facts"
will without doubt be modified to a great degree.

According to rumor coming out of the meeting of the congress, it is said that the American and British delegates voted against the expression of news regarding the peace conference. They should vote against anything which would prevent the public from knowing all that is going on at the table.

It is the people's business. Certainly the motives of none of the delegates are such that the world should not know what they are. There should be nothing brought before the conference which the people at home would not accept.

The world will not be satisfied to know merely what the final conclusions of the conference are, but it should know the reasons by which these conclusions are brought about.

Free speech and a free press are two of the strongest pillars in the platform of democracy. If our soldiers fought for democracy and by their sacrifices have made possible
this conference which will fix the regulations under which the world will live in the future, let us start right
the proposition by having free and easy access to the deliberations of the men who are representing in this
the greatest undertaking the world has ever known.

THE TOBACCO SITUATION.

Tobacco growers are confronted with one of the biggest problems this winter they ever faced, but from appearances they are going to be equal to the occasion.

Last summer while the crop was growing, representatives of the large tobacco buyers throughout the east
raced pell mell through the growing section and bought crops right and left at unheard of prices.

In addition to the large prices the buyers in many instances assumed all
risk on the crop while in the field.
By their bidding the price of tobacco
gradually rose until it was apparent that the buyers were trying their utmost to undo the other.

Suddenly, like a thunderbolt, from
a clear sky, came an order to the field
men to quit buying. And they did.
For weeks the farmers who refused offers for their crops have waited for an explanation. But no explanation
has been forthcoming.

On Tuesday, last, 250 farmers met
at Edgerton and discussed conditions.
The result is that farmers are going to sort their own crops and hold their ground. If anything at all results from present conditions it will be loss
of acreage for next year.

Meetings have been held in many places, and last week nearly 100 growers congregated at Cambridge. Dane county, and made plans to meet conditions as they now are.

In the meantime those who were fortunate and sold at last summer's prices are delivering, cashing their big checks and paying off their mortgages, or, if they are free from indebtedness, purchasing new farms.
All in all, the past two seasons have been hard-breakers for the present
growers and heart-breakers for the older farmers who retired on modest fortunes gained through a life time of tobacco raising at six and seven cents
per pound.

What the outcome will be is a great big question that no one cares to take the responsibility to answer, but whatever it is the man who has formed the habit will demand the weed.

SHOULD USE NAMES.

There are people always who mis-
understand the mission of a newspaper and who believe it should be a medium for personal criticism and attack. Sometimes, but not often,
these persons, who are in the main
of the sort of attitude, come to the "Voice of the People" Saturday evening signed "Temperance Educational League" which had it been given a more careful reading, would have been subjected to revision. The writers of these communications usually prefer that their names be not attached to the articles. The honesty of the writer of Assemblyman Thos. S. Nolan is questioned directly and the statement made that he is serving the liquor traffic and dominated by the brewery interests.

Mr. Nolan has never been accused of being dishonest in purpose
and his reputation at home will bear out the statement. He believes in the referendum and so stated to people who approached him on the subject
prior to the opening of the legislative session.

Mr. Nolan resents the aspersions
cast upon him and says he followed his convictions. As a public servant
his acts are open to criticism, but questioning a man's honesty of purpose is a matter of careful thought and should be substantiated with facts. The Gazette columns are open for free discussion of matters of public interest, but the privilege must not be abused.

Janesville has hung up another record for war work of which it is proud. The over-subscribed per cent quota of war stamps. Much credit is due the teachers and pupils
of the schools for the showing made in 1918. Not content with resting on their laurels, teachers and pupils have already swung into the campaign for 1919 with the prospect of making a more enviable record.

Representatives of the American
and British press will not stand for the gag rule which has been suggested for the peace conference. It is evident that the power of the press will be felt before the deliberations have gone far. It is a safe wager that will get a fair line on the proceedings
despite plans to the contrary.

Although Wisconsin failed to get on the honor list of states which ratified the federal prohibition amendment, because the assembly refused to suspend the rules and pass it Wednesday or Thursday, it passed the Susan B. Anthony suffrage amendment without quibbling.

The four Janesville women who won honors in the Western Golf association par team play last season
are to be congratulated on their provinces. They competed against women from all over the middle west.

With the selection of Clemenceau
as presiding officer at the peace table,
there will be no dallying, if his past
performances serve as a gauge.

Clemenceau does not believe in wasting time.

The barks of most willows contain sufficient tannin to make them valuable for tanning purposes. In Bir-
ma, Sweden, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, France and parts of Russia, the highest grade of tannin is obtained from this source. Russia alone uses annually no less than twenty million pounds of willow bark. Many special kinds of leather, such as the Moscow (Russian) leather and Danish glove leather,
characteristic odor, a light color, and considerable pliability. In Germany, Austria and France the use of this
bark is increasing steadily.

GETTING AND GIVING.

Getting and gaining are weary tasks;
Giving and gaining delight us
more.
Much the strife for possession asks,
Leaving us battered and bruised
and sore.
He that labors for selfish gold
Soon grows old.

Taking and keeping are duties stern,
Sapping the strength of our day by day.
Piercing the fires of our ardent burn,
Eating our glorious youth away.
He that fights for a selfish prize
Soonest dies.

Having and holding exhaust us all;
Deeply stamped are the lines of
care;
Ceaseless for our strength they
strip, our souls of their garments fair.

He that battles for self-renewal
Soon breaks down.

Giving and lending are joyous tasks,
Keeping us youthful and blithe and
strong.
Kindness but little of courage asks
And its days are fair and its life
is long.
Not he that gains, but he that gives,
Longest lives.

"TEAR-GETTERS."
Mr. George M. Cohen, "whom etc., etc., and who is the most popular man in American theatricals, today says in an interview with a New York paper that the sure-fire "teargetters" in playwriting are the following:

A child in a nightie saying "now I lay me."

A child dying on the stage.

A love scene played in the moonlight.

A straying woman at bay and crying out, "I am not a bad woman."

A lost child returned to mother.

We don't believe that Mr. Cohen has mentioned the whole list, for we certainly remember that the following stage incidents have got our tears.

What could be surer-fire "tear-getters" than:

Poor old man starving to death in a gutter while his rich daughter drives by in a Rolls-Royce.

Little baby standing on fire escape
with its nightie blowing in wind
watching her poor dear mother crouch
with a traveling gentleman.

Poor old woman standing on roadside track waving a red-checkered handkerchief to stop train which is about to hit her pet goat, which is the sum total of her estate.

Six-month-old infant being hit by automobile while crossing street with milk bottle to be a good mother.

Aged man losing his uppers and cracking his lowers while trying to de-goutate a piece of pickled tripe.

Conde Nast's spring tour, "Vanity Fair" evidently has a marine editor who does much of his sailing in a town car, for in describing a boat
he says: "It is eighty-five feet long
and draws only thirty feet of water."
In other words it has the length of a Hen Ford sub-chaser and the draught
of a Levitation.

PRESS COMMENT.

Why the Distinction?
The newspapers of England and France are at perfect liberty to discuss politics as relating to the United States and the European countries,
while our press is not at liberty to discuss the politics of the situation as relates to England and France. Yet
this is supposed to be the glorious republic.—Racing Journal-News.

Here's a Surprise.
The principal New York crops are
so commonly supposed to be chorus

lation is still semi-military, there will be plenty of firearms to start trouble
at the election if anybody happens to feel so inclined.—Fond du Lac Re-

CARL R. GRAY.

Carl R. Gray, former president of the Western Maryland railroad, who resigned but recently as director of

General McAdoo when the latter stepped out of office.

hinged on his health and his willingness to undertake the arduous duties
involved.

LAKOTA CARDINALS WILL MEET OLYMPIC FIVE ON WEDNESDAY

Janesville Quintet Will Play Second Game of Season At Armory This Week. Jess Dixon May Play.

Bent on repaying the defeat handed them several years ago by the Lakota Cardinals the Olympic club of Madison is coming to Janesville on Wednesday evening with a team composed of former college stars and their main object is to give the Cardinals a trimming.

The Olympic club team this season is reputed to be one of the fastest in the middle west. Several well known basketball stars have been engaged by the Madison team for the game. It is their one desire to beat the Cardinals and a red hot game is expected.

Captain Hemming of the Lakota Cardinals is well pleased with the showing made in practice by his men Saturday the men played a splendid game against the Whiting Owls at Beloit. Tilley, Murphy, Phillips and Hemming will play with the Cardinals. It is not known as yet who will be the other four players. It is hoped that Jess Dixon, former forward for the I. A. C. will reach here in time for the game. Dixon is considered by basketball critics to be one of the greatest players in the game today and his presence will greatly strengthen the Cardinal line up. However if Dixon is unable to get here for the game a place will be secured for him. It was hoped that Chick McIntosh of Edgerton could get in the line up on Wednesday. McIntosh is well known in Janesville and is well thought of by the fans and his presence would be a great boost for the team here.

Every effort is being made to give Janesville the best possible game and the management will improve the team from time to time should it be necessary. However, with Murphy, Tilley, Phillips and Hemming in the line up a good game is assured and the Olympic club will have to step some to slip over a win.

The Madison team is composed of Emphy Benway, forward star of the University of Washington, Arthur Taucken of Wisconsin university, Kilo Brumm, all state center in 1918; now playing with the University of Wisconsin. Forward star of the University of Wisconsin, Howard Schneider, former Madison high school star and Horace Tenney considered one of the greatest running guards in the middle west.

Status of U. S. Citizen Who Swore Allegiance to Britain is Puzzling

Of what country is man a citizen, who was born in the United States and enlisted in the Canadian army and swore allegiance to Great Britain? This is the question which has been asked Circuit Court Clerk Jesse Earle, who, in an effort to answer it properly, has written to the naturalization department at Washington.

Several Rock county boys, who when war broke out went to Canada to enlist in the British army have returned home and are now wondering what is their status. Mr. Earle expects a reply to his query within the course of a week. The decision of federal naturalization officials is awaited with much interest.

Rural Pupils Send in War History of Rock County Soldiers

War history records of several Rock county soldiers have already been received from rural school pupils by County Supt. C. Antisdel. A short time ago blanks were sent out to all schools in the county with the request that pupils gather together all information concerning men from their districts who had entered the service.

All records received will be turned over to the war history committee which has offices on the second floor of the post office.

EMPLOYMENT SERVICE ADVISES SOLDIERS TO GO BACK TO OLD JOBS

Go back to your own home and your old job if possible.

If you are employed you are then in a better position to secure change of employment if that is what you want.

Both the winter season and the fact that so many men are now returning makes it hard to find enough new positions and take care of the changes in occupation for which men are asking.

If you are without money take your old job for the present.

If you are without experience which fits you to quickly master new returning makes it hard to find your old job until you are fully prepared for a change.

If you can not secure your old job yourself, apply to this service to help you get it.

If you can secure your old position and refuse it, please appreciate that this bureau is serving those first who are without employment.

The bureau is always glad to counsel with and advise whenever possible.

SHORT SESSION BILL PRESENTED IN HOUSE PROVIDES 90-DAY LIMIT

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Madison, Wis., Jan. 20.—One of the most interesting contests in the legislature will be over the resolution by Assemblyman Ganz, of Alma, asking for a limitation on the legislative session. As soon as he was nominated for office he began a canvass of the members of the legislature to ascertain the sentiment of the members. A large percentage of the members, most of them from the northern part of the state, are committed to the idea.

The resolution provides: "No regular session of the legislature shall extend beyond a period of 90 calendar days after the day when such session commenced; provided, that the legislature may by resolution adopted by a majority of each house thereof, extend such period of time not to exceed 20 days; nor shall any special session extend beyond a period of 25 days after the day when such special session commences."

When the legislature convenes on Tuesday it is expected that it will be able to get down to the routine of legislative work. During the past ten days the legislators have been the actors in a two-ring performance over the national prohibition amendment. At all times when either house was in session the galleries were crowded and the greatest interest was manifested in their deliberations. Thus far the legislature has been more concerned with resolutions than with bills. The last big resolution will probably be disposed of in the house on Tuesday, when the Wilson proposal endorsing the league of nations plan comes up for final consideration.

Each marketing bill will be offered this week. Senator Skogmo will offer the measure drafted by the special committee which investigated the subject. The Equity society expects to have its measure ready before the end of the week. Extensive public hearings will be held by the committees on state affairs in each house.

BUTTERMAKERS WILL MEET AT EAU CLAIRE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Eau Claire, Jan. 20.—The meetings of the Wisconsin Buttermakers' association to be held here from February 4 to 8 will be given over largely to the discussion of the reconstruction problems of the dairyman.

The dairy situation in post-war days will be presented by Dean H. L. Russell of the college of agriculture. E. H. Farrington of the Wisconsin Dairy school will tell of the opportunities for disabled soldiers and sailors in the dairy industry.

Two men from the dairy division of the United States department of Agriculture, H. H. Whiting and William White, will attend the meetings.

STATE FUR TRADE IN 1917 VALUED AT OVER HALF MILLION

Madison, Wis., Jan. 20.—In the palmy days of the fur trade in Wisconsin when John Jacob Astor had his stations within what are now the boundaries of the state, the pelts produced were large and valuable. Otter, beaver, mink, marten, lynx and other fur-bearers were plentiful and the Indians and half-breeds engaged in trapping and hunting made each year a good "stake."

Statistics from those early days are lacking, and there is no means of knowing how many pelts were annually exchanged in what is now the state of Wisconsin. It is safe to assert, however, that the cash value of the annual crop of those days was not as great as the value of the fur pelts taken in Wisconsin at the present time. The earlier yield was of course greater in number and variety of pelts, but the later yield has the higher money value.

It will no doubt surprise many readers to learn that the statistics collected by the conservation commission show that the value of fur pelts taken in Wisconsin in 1917 (the figures for 1918 are not yet available) was $689,905.20; skunk to the number of 50,304 yielded $131,933.20; mink to the number of 22,859 yielded $36,465.50; racoon to the number of 4,651 yielded $14,305.30; weasel to the number of 2,483 yielded $11,636.50; fox to the number of 1,794 yielded $15,295.50; silver to the number of 529 yielded $2,954.40; wolf to the number of 157 yielded $1,740.50; beaver to the number of 337 yielded $4,118.20; bear to the number of 32 yielded $33.75; wildcat to the number of 30 yielded $29.60; lynx to the number of 19 yielded $239; marten to the number of 48 yielded $100.03; opossum to the number of 35 yielded $29; coyote to the number of 12 yielded $21.10; mole to the number of 70 yielded $8.80; badger to the number of 378 yielded $255.50. Total yield $669,905.20.

The chemical process of the combustion of celluloid has been studied by a European investigator and the results of his experiments show a way of dealing with a celluloid blaze. This substance does not ignite spontaneously; but it was found that after extinguishing the flames of a piece of burning celluloid decomposition would still go on, and would continue even in a vessel filled with carbolic acid or steam. This shows that atmospheric oxygen is not necessary for decomposition; that a fire caused by celluloid can only with difficulty be put out with water, and that ordinary chemical fire extinguishers are useless. The flameless combustion starts at a temperature of but little over 212 degrees Fahrenheit, so that the decomposition may be started by a flame some distance away. The white vapors resulting from the combustion form an explosive mixture with air. To extinguish a celluloid blaze in a building is a most difficult task, if not impossible.

HOLD MOCK TRIAL AT HIGH SCHOOL; YOUTH CHARGED WITH 'ARSON'

A mock trial is being conducted at the high school by the pupils of the senior oral English class, under the supervision of Prof. George A. Bassford.

A deep and dark plot has been revealed in the conviction of the defendant, Hubert Roy, by the plaintiff, Kirkland McLaughlin. The charge is arson. It is alleged that a warehouse filled with tobacco on Center avenue was fired and destroyed, both wilfully and wantonly, by said defendant on the night of Jan. 7 between 11 and 12 o'clock.

Perfect silence in the court Friday morning resulted as a witness for the plaintiff was cautiously questioned and re-examined by lawyers for both parties. He made startling statements concerning the character of the defendant, with whom he has been acquainted for the last eight months. Thomas Nuzum, attorney for the plaintiff, carried on a rigid examination, but it is rumored that the witness will undoubtedly break down when he attempts to answer the questions of the attorneys for the defendant.

"It is a serious case and must be dealt with accordingly, for if said defendant is found guilty he will be sentenced to the receiving station of wretched souls where he will eke out the rest of his existence in miserable obscurity," declared the defendant's attorney.

The bell, which excused the class, rang just in time to save the witness for the plaintiff from the inevitable cross-examination.

So far the defendant has shown unusual calmness and has but one thing in view, that of obtaining his liberty. The first session of the trial was held Thursday morning when the four attorneys examined prospective jurors. After much deliberating and questioning by both the defendant's and plaintiff's attorneys a jury of six was sworn in.

On Friday morning the attorneys for the plaintiff presented the case to the jury.

Attorneys appearing on behalf of the plaintiff are Dalton Amerpohl and Thomas Nuzum.

The attorneys appearing for Roy are Kurt Fuchs and Sidney Bliss. Prof. George A. Bassford is acting judge in the case. William Scoble holds the title of sheriff. The clerks of the court are Harold Cox and James Clark.

The jury is composed of Austin Sprackling, Elmer Gestland, John Grambske, Zebe Woodstock, Guy Bullis and Orvin Anderson, Ernest Rost and Ben Walsh being cast out because they would not believe in the defendant's story that he could not convict a man on circumstantial evidence.

Those acting as witnesses for the plaintiff are Howard Gage, Robert Lester, Konth Voltz, Leo Dugan and Floyd Brinkman; for the defendant, Herbert Allen, Edward Steed, Beatrice Field and Constance Cunningham.

CHURCHES' PART IN LEAGUE OF NATIONS THEME OF SERMON

Rev. Franklin F. Lewis Declares Christians Should be Criticized for Shunning War

A sermon of practical import, and one containing a good deal of valuable information, was given by Rev. Franklin F. Lewis yesterday at the morning service held at the Carnegie Methodist church. His topic was, "The Church and the League of Nations."

The criticism of the church and Christian people, had not been heard, he thought, when a nation which had boasted of its religion, and whose universities had been the center of theologians for centuries, sallied forth as a brigand, or a band of destruction, until other Christian nations also had been swept into this great gulf of war.

He said, "That the church must bear its share of blame, for this catastrophe, because they had been talking too much about theology, and not enough about human relationships."

"They must," he said, "begin to preach universal brotherhood and good will among nations, which was the same message as that of Christ, who died on the cross."

He felt that the greatest program of the world, was now before the peace conference, and on which of successfully accomplishing the world's greatest achievement of the age.

He pointed out the fact that during the past 3000 years there had been only about 337 years when the world was at peace. Socialism has been the chief element of society, which has made a constant fight against war, which they have contended was like a wolf, ravaging the vitals of a nation. And now Germany which has believed in war as a nation program, has come to believe that the socialists were right.

"One result of the war," he said, "is that the nations have come to feel that war must go, and this is the great miracle in human consciousness, which has arisen in psychology."

Not Pet of One Party

He mentioned the fact that the idea of a league of nations was not the pet of any one party; that Ex-president Taft had been an ardent exponent of the plan, before president Wilson took it up. And in many of the famous statements of Europe were now being lined up in its favor.

"The churches," he said, "were coming out strongly in favor of the league. The American church of Great Britain, has co-operated in praising the program, as had the free churches of England and Ireland." And in this country, the council of churches have voted unanimously in its favor, and have sent representatives to Paris, to help carry out the program.

In speaking of the terms of a league of nations, he noted that in a general convention among nations of this character, they must each give up some of their sovereign rights, involved. In this question, he pointed out that the United States as the richest and most powerful nation of the earth, could take the lead in this compact as there was no selfish question involved.

With the establishment of a league of nations, he demonstrated that there would naturally follow, the idea that a world's congress, would be established, which would lay down the principles of international law. "What few principles had been formulated already, he said had no force back of them to make them effective, and so useless."

He considered that three things would result from this council, 1st, that there would be a body like the supreme court of the nation, which should be in session all the time, and be ready to interpret the laws, and delegated with power to propose new ones; 2nd, that there must be a world's council of nations, created to settle the large questions involved, like that of the Balkan states, and of the disposition of the colonies.

Pacifism Not Practicable

The latter he believed to be necessary, because some people were not capable of self government themselves, and would not let other nations alone. The majority would lay down the law, that the theory of the pacifist, which was quit fighting, was not practicable at the present stage of the world's progress.

He thought that full co-operation between the different nations of the world, each furnishing a just proportion of ships, and having so many men available, would make the expense of taxation very much less, and make the work much more effective. Individual nations he suggested would of course have the right of government, and settle their internal problems suit themselves. He thought the economic development of every city in the nation was bound up with the settlement of this important matter. He touched lightly on the matter of history who have had the dream of a gigantic empire, Alexander the Great, Charlemagne, Napoleon. Then the Roman Empire, he said, and then Greece had ambitions to rule the world, but it remained for Germany to dream the most colossal program of them all, with a world dominion with a capital city built upon the Rhine. This plan for economic development included the idea of domination of one nation over all.

Another plan was for each nation to build up its own empire, and develop patriotism along these lines. And another outline was for this league of nations which seemed to afford the maximum of self development and the minimum of restraint. He suggested that the rank and file of soldiers who went forth to war believed in this plan of keeping the peace, and preventing further wars. Although they were willing to give their lives for this cause, yet they are ardent believers that there ought to be some way of settling disputes besides girding gun bayonets.

Not Professional Soldiers

They were soldiers for humanities' sake and not as professionals of the art of war, and they were only too eager to drop the grim business and get back to the peaceful pursuits of their home towns, when the fighting was over.

The music was led by a chorus choir of 10 voices, directed by Miss Clara Shawan, who also sang the solo in the anthem, "Light Divine," by Morrison. In the other selection, "Come Unto Me," by Lansing, Miss Cecil Brigham sang the solo.

The sermon, which was on the eighth commandment, and the singing was led by the men's chorus. Mr. E. Van Pool sang the "Ninety and Nine," as a solo.

And you may be sure the dear old lady bunny was happy to get this letter from her little soldier boy, and she made up her mind to bake a carrot pie for him every Saturday, and maybe two on Sunday.

Paper Underclothes.

An excellent and durable quality of underclothing has been made of a fine-grained paper by Japanese manufacturers. After the paper has been cut to a pattern the different parts are sewed together and hemmed, and the places where the buttonholes are to be formed are strengthened with calico or linen. The paper is very strong and at the same time very flexible. After a garment has been worn a few days it will interfere with the perspiration of the body no more than do garments made of cotton fabric. The paper is not sized, nor is it impermeable. After becoming wet, the paper is difficult to dry when an undershirt is made to tear it by hand it resists almost as much resistance as the thin skin used for making gloves.

From various sources, comes the report of German women being used to man the machine guns and being chained to them as the men are said to be.

CHAPTER I.

The Wilderness.

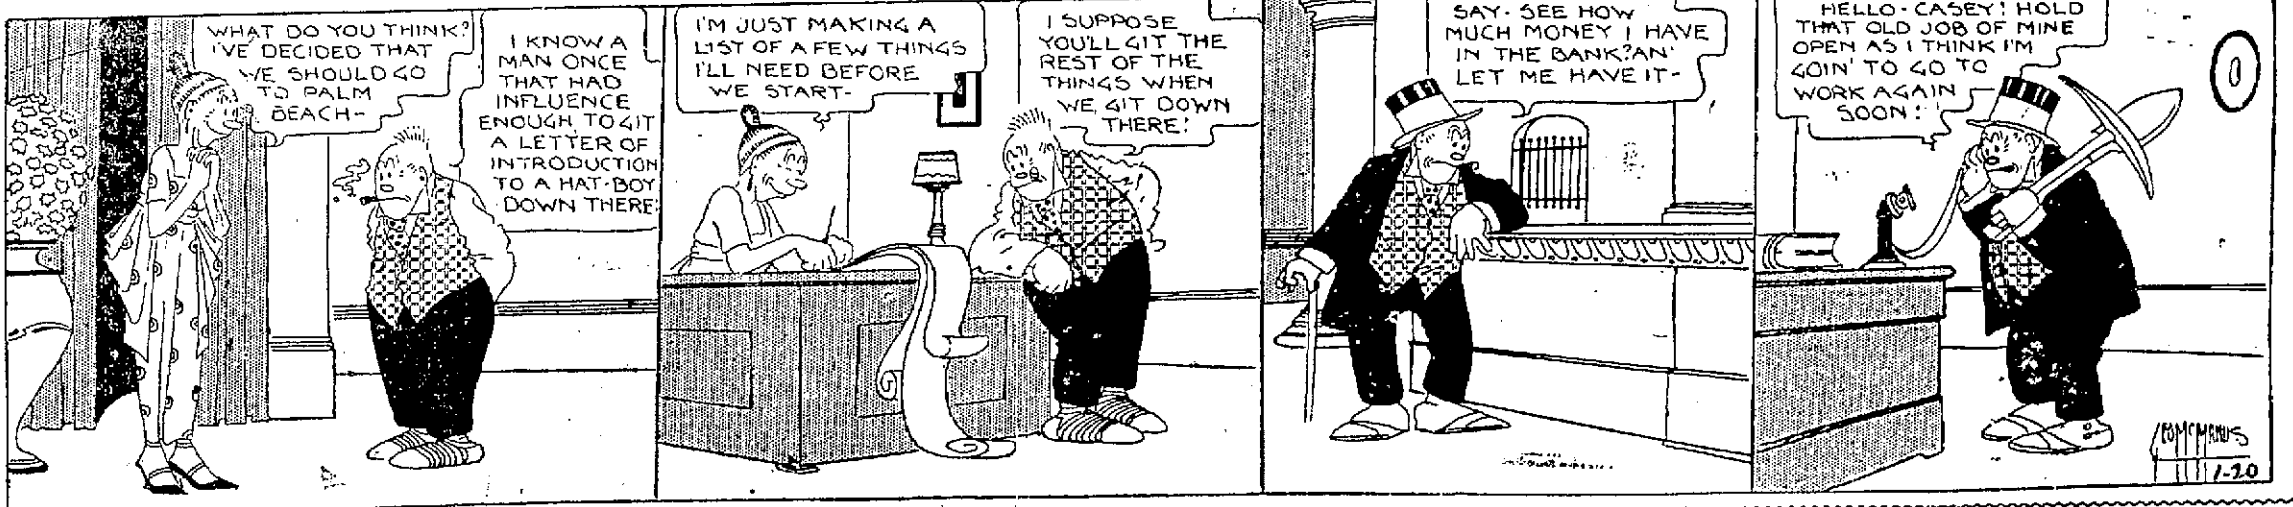

April—1811! Up the valleys of the South spring stoles treacherously from the farther South, along the river lowlands of Kentucky and up the sides of the steep, pebbly hills on the Indiana shore. First to come, like the white gullions of an army of peace, the blossoms of the wild plum flung out diaphanous draperies against the monochromes of the solis and the dark greenness of the pine woods. Then, in the open spaces and around the gray log cabins on the heights, the peach trees flushed pink in the warm kisses of the sun. The new grass was starred in patches by multitudes of blinets, the blue-eyed grass, each tiny flower as simple and as wonderful as a little child.

Deep in a crevice of the limestone strata that sank to form the bed of the little Indian creek, hidden from the warmth and light of the April morning, there lay a coil of what might have been mistaken for a rope—a coil whose every fold was thick as a man's wrist, tawny, mottled with spots of dull black, yellow-tinged.

Along the path through the forest there came striding a tall youth, in ragged garments, a little bundle slung at the end of a staff over his shoulder. His fair skin was deeply burned by the sun and his blue eyes were veiled in anxious thought. He had, pursued another man over sea and through forest wilderness with the intention of killing that man if he should overtake him.

Now, the young man's intention was blunted. Months before it had seemed the one right and just thing that this other man should die at his hands. This other man had caused the legal murder of the youth's father. But to take justice into one's own hands, even on such provocation as this, is an act unspeakably dreadful; and weeks of meditation had succeeded only in painting it as a thing more despicable.

In the fragrant breath of the virgin earth he cried out in an agony of mind. A burgeoning universe shouted aloud for joy of victory over death. Life rose by pressing her triumphant feet on the prone shoulders of her weaker brother, Death. For the struggle between Life and Death is actual, and Life lives by killing. God himself ordained the killing and pronounced it part of his eternal justice. But the agonizing man who thought of the life he had sworn to take with his own hand—what could justify his act? His act would be accomplished

"A Fine Marnin', Young Ma-an."

not that he might live, but in that passion of the brute—revenge. The sense of blood-guiltiness to come bore down on David Larrance with its maddening weight.

The young man reached the point where the path forded the stream and paused in surprise. On the farther bank were two figures—a slender young girl whose beauty made him draw in his breath sharply, and the figure of an old gentleman in black coat and knee breeches, bent over a pile of brush which he was endeavoring to coax into fire.

At the girl's exclamation the old gentleman rose to his feet stiffly, brushing the twigs from his knees.

"A fine marnin', young ma-an," he greeted cheerily, with an ethereal flavor of brogue.

But it was not so much the friendliness in the old gentleman's voice that made the young man smile, as it was the smile that lighted up the eyes of the girl. Her dark hair made a sliken frame about her pink cheeks and smiling lips; her eyes—sapphire blue and clear as the sky—danced with a smile of divine friendliness. And then, too, she crinkled her eyelids all around them. An iron image would have responded to that laughing challenge.

The youth said "Good morning."

"Bound for Corydon?" inquired the old gentleman affably. His undoubted years were somehow discounted by an almost elfin quickness of glance, and his hobbling gait, his whole appearance suggested a Solomon among cock-sparrows hopping along a pump handle.

"Bound for Corydon?"

"Yes. Am I on the right trace?"

"Folly the path an' the town's a bit of a mile ahead of ye—but if ye will pity the sorrow of a foolish old black-skirt who can't build a bit of a fire to save his soul, ye'll not push on till we've got the tinder going." And he thrust his flat and steel into the young man's hands "with an air of comical dismay."

"Oh, do," said the girl. "Father's so stupid."

The young man took the flat and steel with a laugh and knelt down to obey. He rearranged the twigs with a careful hand, struck a spark into the tinder and nursed it for a breathless moment; then a tiny flame crept up the pile of brush and the three looked at one another in triumph.

"Not that we're needin' fire at all, at all," said the little old gentleman, "on a day like this; but 'tis always a comfort in the woods."

"You build a fire like a woodsman," observed the girl admiringly, "though of course you aren't one."

He flushed, for he knew that his rags were an unusual dress for the buckskin-clad men of the forest; and the girl added quickly, "Because you aren't carrying a rifle."

"No, I'm no woodsman," he admitted, grateful for her tact, "but I've come a long distance through the woods and have had to learn a little of their ways."

"Ye've come a long way?" asked the old gentleman. "Twin ye'd best be sittin' down with us for a bit. Sure, the town will wait."

"Oh, do!" added the girl impulsively. "Tell us about the woods. Have you seen any Indians? Father didn't want to come out here today for fear one would pounce on us." She laughed a ripple more musical than that of the brook, and tucking the skirts of her Amazon habit beneath her, settled herself on the ledge of limestone rock.

"Tell us about Indians," she went on comfortably. "We came here from New Orleans and haven't seen a single real point-and-feather one yet. Ooh! she laughed in mock terror.

The fire crackled merrily up the face of the rock and a draft of its warmth swept into the crevice of the stone. The dusky thing lying within stirred pleasantly.

"I've seen only peaceful Indians on the road so far," smiled the young man. "I can't tell you any exciting tales."

"Don't be pesterin' the lad, Tol-nette," chided the old man. "I'll be bound he's too tired to talk."

The mottled robe within the crevice felt the warmth of the fire, stirred, uncoiled and glided noiselessly toward the aperture, paused again.

"You live in Corydon, sir?" asked the young man. "I'd like to find work there—I'm a weaver by trade."

The old gentleman put his head on one side in dubious reflection. "Small chance for a weaver, my lad," he answered, "for every cabin has a loom of its own. But ye'll find something for—"

His words froze on his lips as a tawny mottled length flowed out from the crevice, built itself up with a quick, sinuous twist into a coil of living death. But, with a lightning quickness, the young man had seized his oaken staff from the ground.

"Don't move, Tol-nette!" he cried; and on the words the cudgel whirled above his shoulders and struck the venomous head like a thunderbolt. A long left arm swept down and plucked the girl from the spot where the ugly folds curled and flattened among the rocks.

"Merciful heaven!" cried the little old man weakly, and buried his face in his hands.

The girl drew a deep breath; and the young man suddenly realized that he was still straining her to his side. He released her as though she burned his fingers; and his face crimsoned with shame.

"I beg your pardon," he said awkwardly. "I'm sorry I was so rough."

But the girl's eyes shone like stars. "I'm not thinking of roughness," she said tremulously. "I'm just—thankful." She went over to her father and kissed him.

"My boy—" began the old man, one arm around his daughter's waist; and ended: "Oh, if we were in Ireland, where there are no basties like that!"

The young man laughed. "They stop to rattle here, thank God!"

But the little old man waved his modesty aside.

"My name is Patrice O'Bannon," he said, "and proud I'll be to know yours, sir."

"David Larrance," was the answer. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

The Thirteenth Commandment

By RUPERT HUGHES

He looked at her with baffled emotions. She was so delectable and so obstinate, so right-hearted and so wrong-headed. It was intolerable that she should keep a shop. He spoke after a long delay:

"May I come and see you once in a while?"

"If you want to."

"Where you living now?"

"Still at the Chivvies."

"You ought to take better care of yourself than that. Surely you can afford a better home."

"I suppose so, but it would be lonely anywhere else. It has been safe there—since you quit calling on me. It doesn't cost me much."

"But you're making so much money."

"Not so very much—yet, but it's all my own and I made every cent of it, and—golly! how I love to watch it grow."

"You miser."

"Maybe. I guess that's the only way to save money—to make a passion out of it and get a kind of voluptuous feeling from it. But I really think that it's the fun of making it that interests me most. It certainly keeps me out of mischief and out of loneliness. Oh, there's no freedom like having a job and a little reserve in the bank. It's the only life, Clay."

"And you wouldn't give up your 'freedom,' as you call it, even for a man you loved? Couldn't you love a man enough to do that?"

"I could love a man too much to do that. For where's the love in a woman's sitting around the house all day and waiting for a man to come home and listen to the gossip of her empty brain? That isn't loving, that's loathing."

Clay was not at all persuaded. "But there's no comfort or home life in marrying a business woman."

"How do you know? You know plenty of unsuccessful wives who are not business women."

"I want a housekeeper, not a shop-keeper."

"Go get one, then, I say. If a woman can't earn enough outside to hire a housekeeper let her do her own housework. But if she can earn enough to hire a hundred housekeepers why should she stick to the kitchen? In my home, if I ever get one, the cook will not be the star. Besides, it enlarges life so. Instead of two living on the wages of one two will live on the earnings of two. It seems to me it couldn't help being a better and a happier way of living."

Clay blushed vigorously as he mumbled "What's your business woman going to do when the babies come? Or do you cut out the kiddies?"

Daphne blushed, too. "Well, I should think that the business woman could afford babies better than anybody else. She has to give up the housework, anyway, even when she's a housekeeper. I suppose she could give up her shop for a while. At least she could share the expense—or her husband could stand the bills since he escapes the pain. I tell you, if I ever had a daughter I'd make her learn her own trade if she never learned anything else. I'd never raise her to the hideous, indecent belief that the world owes her a living and she's got a right to squeeze it out of the heart's blood of some hard-working man. No, sirree! It may be old-fashioned, but it isn't decent, and it isn't even romantic. The love of two free souls, with their own careers and their own expenses, seems to me about the best kind of love there could be. Then both of them can come home evenings and their home will be a home—a fresh, sweet meeting place."

Clay breathed hard. He was silenced, but not convinced—beyond being convinced that Daphne Kip was still the one woman in the world for him, in spite of her cantankerous notions.

Still, of course, a woman had to have some flaw or she would not be human. Daphne's flaw was as harmless as anyone's, perhaps. So he blurted out:

"I suppose you've given up all thought of marrying me?"

She answered him with pious earnestness: "I've never given up that thought, Clay. I've been trying to make myself worthy of the happiness it would mean. I have had the trousseau all made, and paid for, a long while. That's what I came to town for originally—our trousseau. But when I saw how much sacrifice it meant for my poor old father and what a bundle of bills I'd be dumping on my poor young lover I couldn't see the good of it. So I took my vow that I wouldn't get a trousseau till I could earn the price of it myself. And now I've earned the price and I've got it. But I've lost my excuse for wearing it."

"Still, I'd probably have lost you, anyway, or ruined you if I had brought up my old ideas. Everybody always says that money is the enemy of love. I wonder if it couldn't be made, the friend. It would be an interesting experiment, anyway."

"Daphne, honey, let's try the experiment."

She looked at him with a heavenly smile in her eyes, and answered, "Let's."

He moved toward her, but she dodged behind the counter. She studied him a moment, then reached below the counter. A bell rang and a drawer slid out. She took some bills from it, made a memorandum on a slip of paper, and put that in the place of the bills, closed the drawer, and leaned across the counter, murmuring:

"They say all successful businesses are begun on borrowed money. So I'll borrow this from the firm—for luck."

She put out her hand. Clay put out his. She laid three dollars on his palm and closed his fingers on them.

"What's all this?" he asked, all mystified. She explained:

"A plain gold band costs about six dollars, and that's for my half of the partnership. Women are wearing their wedding rings very light nowadays."

"It should say so," Clay groaned, but with a smile.

She bent forward and he bent forward and their lips met. She was only a saleswoman selling a customer part of a heart for part of a heart, but to Clay the very counter was the golden bar of heaven, and Daphne the Blessed Damesel that leaned on it and made it warm.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Daily Gazette, Jan. 20, 1879.—Yesterday afternoon Thomas Lynch's son was driving along East Milwaukee street when a bolt holding the shafts slipped out, causing the horses to clear the gutter and cross the river on a run up the street, the shafts rattling against the horse's heels. The team struck Croft & Sherer's corner. On great loss.

Mrs. C. Tyrant of Richland Center, a lady of great accomplishments, and well known in the musical circles of this state, spent the Sabbath in the city.

District Attorney Sale says it is all nonsense about trying to bail Mrs. Mack out. According to the order of the supreme court she is to be kept in jail here until the case can be reviewed.

The Chicago Times states that there are about five female lawyers in the United States. The Times must be a little off in statistics, or else Janesville has already more than its share, for there are already three practicing in this city.

Senator Richardson and Assemblyman Lovejoy spent the Sabbath at home and returned to Madison today. Mr. and Mrs. Milo Palmer have returned from Stoughton and again taken up their residence on Madison and Academy streets.

A report is abroad in the city today that Sam Davis, the well known engineer, who was so badly injured in the railroad accident near Appleton last summer, died yesterday afternoon of congestion of the brain.

Tall's team took a lengthy run Saturday afternoon, but not a very lively one. They jogged from Burr Robins' farm up town until they were stopped, tall running vainly after them and hollering "Who Emma." Both horses were windbroken when the race was over.

"If you must know," she replied in measured tones, "if you must know you have stepped on my corns."

"It says here that marriage is a preventive against suicide," said Mrs. Gabb, as she looked up from the newspaper she was reading.

"Is that so?" growled Mr. Gabb. "Well, don't forget that suicide is also a preventive against marriage."

THIN PEOPLE SHOULD TAKE PHOSPHATE

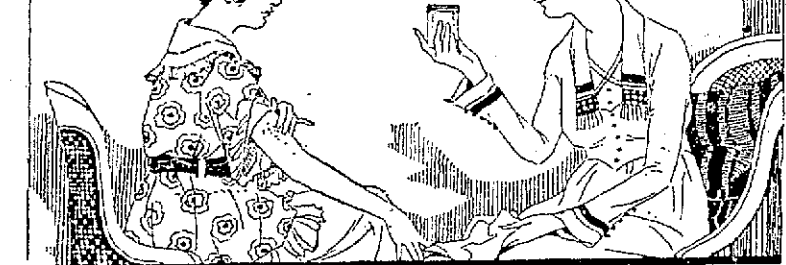

Nothing Like Plain Bitter-Phosphate to Put On Flimsy, Healthy Flesh and To Increase Strength, Vigor and Nerve Force

Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, necks and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are usually due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among the druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive and is sold by Smith Drug Co. in Janesville, and almost all druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food element, bitro-phosphate quickly produces a welcome transformation in the appearance; the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

This increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompanies excessive thinness, soon disappear, dull eyes become bright, and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.

CUTION: Although bitro-phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, it should not, owing to its remarkable flesh-growing properties, be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh.

THE COMEBACK OF SPORTS

COLLEGE ATHLETICS

By VEDOCK.
International News Sports Editor.
New York, Jan. 20.—Great participation in athletics among the masses as well as among the colleges and universities of the country than the United States has ever seen before is predicted as a result of the war and the return of the youth to the United States. T. Kirby of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletics of America.

Chairman of the advisory board of the I. A. A. A. and an untiring worker for the uplift and growth of athletics for years, Mr. Kirby is qualified to speak from the standpoint of an authority of unquestioned judgment. Discouraging the future of athletics in this country, he says:

"I believe that the United States, as never before, stands ready and eager to promote athletics of all kinds, and that the present assured future of this sport has been assured."

"The great lesson that we have learned from the world war, of the value of men being athletically trained, with a greater combative spirit to meet all problems, and the development of both mind and body, is bound to have its effect."

"Well posted authorities of all the allied nations are now agreed as to the value of the United States, characteristic of the American spirit, or 'pep,' as we call it in the colleges, can be traced to athletics. The ginger and spirit of the American troops, the discovery that it has been possible to supplant carnal instincts with wholesome, health-giving sports, and the direct effect of these sports on the morale of the United States army alone has opened the eyes of the world to the value of athletic training."

"Athletic endeavor, therefore, is bound to grow by leaps and bounds in this country—grow beyond the fondest expectations of a few years back. Athletics will be taken up and fostered by the masses. I look for more gymnastics, swimming, cross-country running and walking, greater boy scout activities and a general leaning toward 'moral hygiene' as a direct result of the lesson taught by the war."

"I believe the intercollegiate championships, which will be held May 30 and 31, will be eminently successful in the way of increased numbers of competitors and spectators. The year this year will probably see few records fall, but it gives promise of being the greatest in the history of the event."

"The Intercollegiate Association has always striven to encourage competition on the part of the mediocre athlete, as has the Public School Athletic Union. The records of our association show that in the beginning of the war were given for first place only in athletic events, except where a tie occurred. Today points are scored by the athletes who finish from first to fifth in all events."

"This system shows the effort that has been made to get away from the system of centering the glory on one athlete, and it has had its effect. The so-called 'dub,' not alone for bringing out numbers, but for the purpose of planting productive seeds in the student body, the coach, the other to inspire him with loyalty to his team, his school, loyalty that is bound to be reflected in his feelings toward his city, state and country when he goes out into the work-a-day world."

"The dissolution of the students' athletic training corps in all colleges has had a temporary effect of depressing plans for the resumption of sports. The schools are not yet in a position to get back into their natural swing. But all that will change as the students right themselves once more. Athletics are bound to boom. There is not a pessimistic shadow on the athletic horizon as far as I can see."

Sport Snap Shots

New athletics gain such renown that their fame lasts over a period of fifty years. There is one notable exception to the rule. He is John Engler of Jersey City, who reached the top of his career in 1888, when he clinched the professional fancy ice skating championship.

Engler, who will celebrate his eighty-eighth birthday on April 17, has had an unusual career. He became the only man of his time who successfully made his living by fancy ice skating. In the 60's he was a familiar figure on the various ponds of New York and vicinity. He then became the first professional skater to publish in its Feb. 9, 1887, issue a full page wood cut of Engler and Dolly (fanciful) Bedell in the act of performing on ice skates on the Union pond, Williamsburg, L. I.

Born in Quakertown, Pa., on April 17, 1831, Engler came to Jersey City when about 16 years old. He was a family by trade, and for three years he helped his father build a contract to keep the city's lamps in repair. When between 12 and 15 years of age he traveled about the country with a circus as a lumberer until 1849, when he made fancy ice skating a profession. Gradually he obtained fame through his graceful ability and daring. He taught Jackson Haines, the American who went back on the continent later became known as the father of European figure skating.

When the civil war broke out in 1861 Engler joined the northern forces as first color bearer of the Twenty-first regiment of New Jersey. During this service he received four medals for distinguished bravery and sharpshooting. He received a promotion to sergeant and was one in the temple and one in the thigh.

After the war Engler married and settled in Jersey City, where he now lives with his wife and a daughter. He is the father of four children, of whom eight, two sons and six daughters, still are alive.

During the period of the civil war Jackson Haines of Albany was the title of fancy ice skating king, but upon Engler's return he quickly regained his former laurels. Old theatrical programs which Engler has pasted in a scrap book record the fact that he skated with Miss Carrie A. Moore in 1849, when George L. Fox was on the bill as the headliner. He also appeared at the Bowery theater on Saturday evening, April 9, 1870, and at a reception during the same year he was billed as the "Skatorial King of the World," when he skated on stilts three feet high. During his skating career

WHITING OWLS DEFEAT FAIRIES

Fast Indiana Quintet Manage To Win From Beloit Team By Score of 30 to 10. Humming The Star.

After getting the scare of their life by being held to a 8 to 5 score in the last half of Saturday evening's game, Whiting Owls came back strong in the last half and defeated the Beloit Fairies by a score of 30 to 10. It was the same old lineup for the Owls with Andrew J. Dupignac, Fred and Feeney as the heavy men. Feeney the individual star of the aggregation was completely lost playing against Humming and Vic secured two field goals before Feeney knew he was in the game.

Phillips a Lakota Cardinal star put the kibosh on Johnson the big star of the team and held him to one basket during the entire game. Owing to the fact that Dixon did not show up the Fairies went into the fray with the same lineup as the Cardinals had on last Thursday night with the exception of missing Johnson.

Much praised, much advertised the Whiting Owls are not the greatest team in the country and it should be a sorry matter for the Cardinals hanging defeat on them when they meet early in February.

Beloit played an exceptionally fast game but all breaks were against them and it can truthfully be said that fully one half of the points made by the Owls were long shots six of them being from the middle of the floor.

Every man on the Beloit team played a great game and with a few exceptions they should have topped. The Owls were not up to standard and will have to improve a great deal if they expect to win over the Lakota Cardinals.

Andrew J. Dupignac acted as his coach. Engler has fifteen medals of solid gold and silver for figure skating, which are valued at $1,400. He has won medals were won at Hartford, Jersey City, Newark, Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Boston, Rochester, N. Y., and Rochester.

Engler has a remarkably strong constitution. He has been a great lover of the outdoor life and always has been fond of fishing and hunting. He still enjoys these hobbies to the extent he has smoked all his life and used liquor moderately. Temperance and moderation in all things, he says, is one of the keynotes of his success.

He has the peculiarity of eating whenever he feels like it, and often gets out of bed in the wee sma' hours of the morning to make tea. He has had a great deal of medical attention, ten years, but makes his own antidotes.

Ty Cobb, aside from leading the batsmen in the American league in eleven out of twelve years, has played in 1,533 games during the period and has averaged hitting average of over .370, leading all league rivals.

Captain Samuel Strang Nicklin, United States army, of Chattanooga, former star of the New York Giants, quit baseball several years ago and went to Chattanooga, where he became a grand opera star. The war broke out and he secured a commission in the army. Next year he will manage the Chattanooga ball team. He was formerly a coach of the ball team at West Point.

Prest Cantrell has offered to lend the club franchise to Nicklin with provision that if he keeps it running for three years it will be sold to him in fee simple and if not it is to revert to Cantrell. Nicklin says that he is willing to abandon his chance for a commission in the regular army and give up his job as coach at West Point to maintain baseball in his home town.

He declares that this will be a big year for the diamond and if his plans are successful he will have a team in charge of the Chattanooga team in the Southern Association.

Within two months sports will be boosted in every moving picture theater in the country. In Springfield, Ill., articles of incorporation have been filed for the Athletic Film Corporation of Chicago, and the company plans to release one and probably two reels of films every week, showing well known players participating in their respective branches of sport. The first reel is completed and will probably be released next week. The objects of the corporation are realized they plan to take pictures of all sporting events where titles are at stake, with the exception of ring contests. No fight pictures will be taken, as there is a nation-wide law prohibiting them being shown on the screens in this country. Marty McHale, the former American league pitcher, recently sponsored a set of baseball pictures showing the members of the major league clubs in action on the diamond. They were shown at several Broadway houses and scored a great success.

Clean out the attic by getting rid of odds and ends stored there. A little classified ad will do the trick.

Around the State

"Welcome Home" Banquets.

Kenosha Has 508 Orphans.
Kenosha.—Kenosha leads the cities of the United States in caring for fatherless orphans of France, according to an announcement from headquarters received here. Kenosha has adopted three and a half times her quota by providing funds for 508 orphans.

No Fishing This Winter.
Marinette.—Marinette fishermen are losing over $1,000 a day owing to the fact that Green bay has not yet frozen over and fishing on the ice is impossible. Indications now are that it will remain open the rest of the winter. This is the mildest winter Marinette has experienced in its history.

Home on Hatches.
Marinette.—Sergeant Ben Clough, 127th Infantry, arrived home on Friday, the first wounded man to return to Marinette on crutches. He was wounded at battle near Verdun. The latter wound on the knee still disables him. Private Michael Costello of this city, previously reported missing, is now home. He was killed in action Oct. 18 while fighting with the infantry.

Mad Dog Case Ends.
Marinette.—"Phish" was written Friday on Marinette's mad dog case, opening over five years ago when John Malecker, owner of a little spaniel called "Phish," was sued for $15,000 by the father for the death of his nine year old, Gregory, a dog.

The boy's death was due to a bite inflicted by the dog. The case was tried twice in the circuit court here and twice appealed to the state supreme court, and was finally settled for $150. The resultant litigation, it is believed, will serve as a precedent in future litigation of the same kind as the attorneys exhausted legal expedients in the frequent trials. The suit has been written up in many of the legal publications of the country.

Import Twenty Guineas.
Stevens Point.—The dairy cattle movement in Portage county is to be given new impetus the coming season by the importation of 20 head of pure bred Guernsey heifers direct from the Island of Guernsey. Eight of the heifers are purchased by Robert K. McDonald, Ave by G. W. Andrus, three by D. F. Gates and four by J. W. Duncanson. The latter who is vice president of the Portage National bank, will use the stock sent him in forming a cow club among the county farmers. The heifers are now being selected by Frank S. Pater of Crawford, N. J., one of this country's largest importers.

A Clever Stunt.
La Crosse.—"Can you change a hundred dollar bill?" inquired a man in his shirt sleeves who rushed into a dry goods store here shortly before closing time. The cashier, thinking he had come from a neighboring store, laid out a fifty-dollar bill and some smaller change. "Two much small change," said the coatless man, picking up his hundred and the fifty-dollar bill. The cashier was not missed for a half hour. The coatless man has not been found.

PHILOMATHIAN CLUB DISCUSSES DEMOCRACY
"Making the World Safe for Democracy" was the topic of discussion taken up by the members of the Philomathian club at a meeting held Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. D. Murdock. A paper, showing a grasp of the subject, and containing much valuable information, was read by Mrs. Claire Murdock on the general topic, "Democracy of the Poets."

She divided the subject into the poetry before the civil war, and before that period. In the first of the latter she mentioned Bryant, Emerson, Poe, Longfellow, Whittier, James Russell Lowell and Whitman, giving quotations from the poems of each to illustrate her point.

In latter-day poets, she mentioned Vachel Lindsay, Robert Frost, William Herbert Carruth, and others. Several poems written during the present war were read, and were much appreciated.

A magazine article from the Review of Reviews called "Progress of the World," was read. It gave a general resume of the great things gained by the present war. During the business meeting a report was made by Mrs. Thorne of the generous baskets sent out by the club at that time.

The next meeting will be held in two weeks, at the home of Mrs. J. E. Stevens, and the topic will be "The Entrance of the U. S. into the World War."

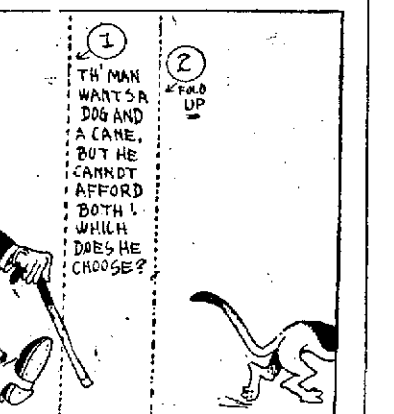

WISCONSIN BOYS HAVE CHANCE TO JOIN NAVY

The United States Navy is again open for enlistments and a state wide recruiting campaign is being waged. In an effort to put Wisconsin over the top, eligible men from 17 to 35 years are wanted to fill the places of thousands of sailors, who have received their discharges from the service.

Boys under 18 are obliged to have their parents consent before entering. Applicants report at Milwaukee, where a navy recruiting office is located. By authority from Washington, it is again permissible to pay the transportation of the applicant from his home city. His sustenance while in the city, also will be paid. If unsuccessful, in the physical test, he will be returned home at the government's expense.

In order that this may be used in a conservative manner, consistent with the plan of economy practiced in government branches at this time, it is suggested that no one take advantage of this offer, unless they feel reasonably sure they will pass the examination. Physical test, by local physician, should first be taken. If successful, the Milwaukee office or its nearest sub-station should be notified and transportation will be sent.

A Few Plain Facts About the Milwaukee Street Railway Situation

FACT NO. 1:

The Electric Company is not trying to dictate the form of revenue increase to be granted the Milwaukee car lines by the Wisconsin Railroad Commission.

The Company asks only that the Commission shall as soon as possible decide whether the Company can afford to continue paying its car men the January wage increase, permanently, without increased car revenue.

The Company declares it cannot, unless it is to be arbitrarily deprived by the Commission of the lawful return on its State-appraised street railway investment, and of the 1919 dividend on its stocks, which the State appraisal of the property shows it is lawfully entitled to receive.

The Company asks the Commission, which has all of the facts, to decide the matter one way or the other in time to prevent a threatened strike of our car men on Feb. 1.

If the Commission decides the Company CANNOT afford to continue paying the January wage increase without increased car earnings, it is taken for granted this decision will be accompanied by an order increasing car earnings.

If the Commission decides the Company CAN afford to continue paying the January wage increase without increased car earnings, THE COMPANY WILL CONTINUE TO PAY THE WAGE INCREASE, THERE WILL BE NO STRIKE, and the Company will be in position to appeal to the courts against the confiscatory effect of the Commission's decision.

Until the commission ACTS, one way or the other, the Company is powerless to protect itself in any way.

The Company believes the Wisconsin Railroad Commission was created by the State to protect equally the rights of utility investors and their patrons.

FACT NO. 2:

The Electric Company did not instigate nor control the strike of the car men on Jan. 1, 1919.

That strike was ordered by majority vote of the transportation department members of the Employees' Mutual Benefit Association. Their vote was taken by the Australian secret ballot system. The majority of votes cast for a strike was large.

The Company knew the men were entitled to the wage increase they demanded, and said so frankly. It also told the men it was unable to pay the increase, without robbing its stockholders of ALL wage on their investment, unless increased car earnings could be obtained.

The E. M. B. A., through its own independent audit of the Company's books, was satisfied that what the Company said was true. Nevertheless, the men struck. The Company will be unable to prevent them from striking again on Feb. 1, if their January wage increase is not continued. Contrary statements are incorrect. Upon this point, as upon every other detail of the Company's affairs, it welcomes the most searching investigation by any impartial organization or committee representing the public.

FACT NO. 3:

All the Electric Company's employees, except the executive officers, are hired by the Employment Office of the Employees Mutual Benefit Association, under its contract with the Company.

All, if permanently employed, must become members of the E. M. B. A., just as in a "closed shop" of any kind all workers must be or become members of the unions which supply the shop's employees.

The members of the E. M. B. A. prefer their form of industrial unionism, with its many co-operative benefits, over the older form of single craft unions. They believe they can get better results with 3,600 employees of all trades in one big union than they could with 3,600 split up into a hundred or more small single craft unions.

The last time any serious attempt was made by agents of the Amalgamated to organize The Electric Company's car men, the Company sent them a courteous written invitation to come to the Public Service Building and submit the benefits of their union to a representative committee of the employees publicly, in competition with the known benefits of the E. M. B. A. The Company was entirely willing, if its employees should prefer the Amalgamated form of union, to deal with such union. The invitation was not accepted. The effort to draw E. M. B. A. members into the Amalgamated failed. The fifty or sixty E. M. B. A. men who had agreed to join the Amalgamated withdrew their applications and requested the return of their initiative fees. Whether the fees were returned the Company is not informed.

The Electric Company's wage and working policy is well known. For more than two years past the Company has been steadily trying to get revenue sufficient to establish the 8-hour day throughout the system, and to pay wages required by the present high cost of living without robbing its stockholders of the reasonable yearly wage to which they, too, are justly entitled, and which they MUST get if new capital is to be obtained from year to year for the growth of the system.

The Company's aim is to give every employe a wage at least as high as the current scale in the older unions. The Company's ability to do this rests, of course, upon its ability to earn sufficient revenue.

The Company's employees know this, hence their active efforts, seconding the Company's to get SOME KIND OF DECISION from the Wisconsin Railroad Commission upon the Company's pending plea for increased revenue.
